Dixon speaks out on energy issues

by Marc Pacatte

Secretary of State Alan J. Dixon, speaking to a political science class on campus Wednesday, said that the two main issues voters are concerned with today are inflation and energy.

Dixon spoke to the state and local government class about ten minutes, then fielded questions from the class.

Dixon, kicking off a full day of campaigning for the U.S. Senate here, said that as a senator he would strive to balance the national budget.

He also said that Illinois coal should be developed as a major means of fuel, to break away from foreign dependence.

Dixon said that solar energy and gasahol are other alternatives to foreign oil.

Dixon said nothing about nuclear energy during the class talk, but later he was asked for his opinion on nuclear energy.

"We need those nuclear plants," Dixon said, because 50 percent of the city of Chicago is powered by nuclear energy.

"We can't avoid it. We need it," Dixon said of nuclear energy. He added "we need to make it safer."

Dixon had harsh words for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, saying it has been "better than nothing," but later on the radio program, he called the NRC a "total failure."

He said however, that there "needs to be some other kind of agency, directly answerable to the president," because "commissions tend to pass the buck."

Dixon said future nuclear energy plants should be built in rural areas, and that they should be built in clusters, so that scientists can benefit from the proximity of the plants to each other.

He said that he was opposed to depositing nuclear wastes in Illinois. Dixon said the wastes should be dumped in areas "where there aren't people."

Dixon declined to endorse either Senator Ted Kennedy or President Jimmy Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"I know both of them personally; I like them both," Dixon said.

He added that he thinks the possibility of a Carter-Kennedy fight would not be divisive, but the challenge would be a "good thing" for the Democrats.

"The Republicans have 10 or 11 candidates, and no one is saying that it's divisive for them," he added.

Council delays passage of smoke alarm ordinance

by Joan Rebecchi

An ordinance requiring smoke detectors to be installed in all Charleston structures will not go into effect until December, Public Property Commissioner John Beusch said at Tuesday's City Council meeting.

"Since the issue of smoke detectors is so prominent the City Council needs specifications from the state for the ordinance to be put on public file, Beusch said.

Once the specifications arrive the ordinance will be placed on file for public inspection for 30 days. Beusch said the ordinance will then be voted on by the city council.

The proposed ordinance states "the owner(s) of any building of group I (institutional), group R-1 (residence, hotel, motel, lodging house, boarding house and dormitory), group R-2 (residential multi-family), R-3 (residential one and two-family) shall install in operable condition smoke detector devices."

Wayne Lanman, streets and public employment commissioner stated he has received objections from homeowners about the mandatory installation of smoke detectors. The homeowners complained that since they own the houses, city law should not force them to install the detectors, Lanman said.

Olga Durham, public health and safety commissioner said part of the problem is the stores in Charleston do not have a sufficient supply of smoke detectors.

The council also voted to amend the 1979-80 municipal budget.

An increase in liquor licenses last year gave the city $3,000 which the council decided to use to help the Hour House alcohol clinic, Beusch said.

The council also received bids from several companies for chemicals to be used in Charleston plants. The water treatment plant, sewage treatment plant and city swimming pool are the plants which use these chemicals, Beusch said. The bids were placed on file.

It was also announced that the fire station will have an open house Saturday. The station is located behind McDonald's.

Smoke detectors will be on display and free blood pressure checks will be offered, Beusch said.

Shall we dance?

Approximately 100 male and female students learned self-defense methods such as kicks, hand thrusts and finger pulls at a workshop Tuesday evening in the University Union Ballroom.

The workshop was held to teach people self defense methods so that if they encounter a situation in which they need to defend themselves they will know how to react. (News photo by Ed Gray)

Call claimed aid to Iran hostages

WASHINGTON — An Illinois congressman said Wednesday his call to Yasser Arafat's headquarters may have been what spurred the Palestinian leader to try to free hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Iran.

"I don't want to be so self-serving as to think that Arafat does everything I think he should do, but at least it happened after I contacted them," Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., told a news conference.

Findley, Arafat's only outspoken supporter on Capitol Hill, said he called Palestinian Liberation Organization headquarters in Beirut around noon Tuesday and urged the idea of a PLO mission on one of the chairman's aides.

The aide, Mahmoud Labadi, was skeptical about the idea at first but promised to take it up with Arafat,

Captain testifies in hijacking trial

CHICAGO — An American Airlines captain testified Wednesday that when accused hijacker Nikola Kavaja, armed with explosives, boarded his 707 to escape the country, "I looked him in the eyes and said: 'If you're planning anything wild, we can stop it right here.'"

Richard Wernick told a federal court jury that Kavaja replied: "No, I'm not going to hurt anybody."

Wernick had volunteered to pilot Kavaja out of the country and testified that when they were airborne he was told to head for Shannon Airport in Ireland. It was there Kavaja surrendered to Irish authorities and was returned to this country.

Researcher says ads give women false image

Jill Kilbourne makes a point in her discussion on the exploitation of women in advertising Tuesday night

Area listings mailed

About 16,000 new Charleston area telephone books have been mailed, Tom Cox, Illinois Consolidated Telephone Company area service manager, said Wednesday.

"The new directories will begin arriving in the mail during the week of Nov. 12 for telephone customers in Charleston, Ashmore and Oakland," Cox said.

Revised rates for in-state Illinois long distance calls became effective Dec. 2, 1978, and an example of the new schedule appears on page nine of the directory. "How to Read Your Telephone Bill" is shown on page 13 of the white section, Cox said.

If additional directories are needed, customers can call 345-9981, Cox said.

Women are pictured as "objects and distorted images of flawless beauty" in advertising, Jean Kilbourne a researcher on sexism in advertising said in a lecture Tuesday night.

The presentation was highlighted with slides of "sexist ads" from magazines and newspapers.

Kilbourne cited advertising as the "primary educational force in our culture."

This is inescapable, Kilbourne said, as advertisements are the foundation of mass media and they surround us with attitudes.

The goal of Kilbourne's presentation was to make her audience more aware of the distortion of the woman's image.

Ads are the worst offender, as they place women in the position of constantly feeling inadequate, she said. Slogans say women are not attractive without make-up or a particular type of clothing, she added. Ads also lessen the value of emotions such as love, empathy, intuition and caring for children, she said.

Another major advertising mistake is that the American woman is not allowed to grow old, Kilbourne said.

A wrinkle rarely appears in an ad, as ads are based on flawlessness, she said.

Kilbourne emphasized the mass media is notorious for making women an "object," with slogans and quotes focusing on the woman's body or a portion of it, even though it has nothing to do with the product being advertised.

One of the worst results of this treatment of women is that men then take a distorted view of the female, Kilbourne said. Men judge women against the beauty of other women and group them together as objects, she said.

Jane, Ted & Jimmy caught in shifting Chicago politics

Chicago Mayor Jane Byrne has made one of the biggest political two-steps in recollection.

President Jimmy Carter, all smiles at a Democratic fundraiser in the Windy city, had the wind taken out of his political sails a week later when Byrne and Cook County Democrats endorsed undeclared contender Ted Kennedy.

What made this affair vicious in nature was Byrne proclaimed at the fundraiser her full support of the Carter administration while the local Democratic coffers were being filled with money now partially marked for Kennedy.

Then, Byrne had some revelation after the gathering that "Ted is The One in 1980!" What could have possibly changed her mind so quickly?

Future political aims probably have a lot to do with this early endorsement. The early jump on the Kennedy bandwagon assures Byrne of a front seat in future Washington posts if she desires one.

Paul

The rewards are great for those supporters who are on the ground floor of any political campaign. Strong campaign supporters will be carried on to executive positions as a reward for their time, money, and efforts during the campaign.

Perhaps a cabinet post like Housing and Urban Development or Health and Welfare is the type of position Byrne might want if Kennedy wins the entire show and if Byrne delivers the vote on election day.

It is difficult to believe that Byrne's revelation was a split-second decision. She vacationed this summer on the shore of Cape Cod, within communications distance of the Kennedy clan, so the subject of 1980 politics probably did come up over cocktails.

From these speculative talks, it is possible some sort of campaign pledge between Byrne and Kennedy was created.

Whether this pledge can be supported totally in the Cook County area is another question. Several county leaders felt that it was too premature to endorse a candidate before one, he declares; two, he defines the issues; and three, before he creates a campaign organization.

Byrne, being brass at times, feels she has the organization that Kennedy can build on.

But there are opponents to this early endorsement from within her so-called organization. Edmund Kelly, park district superintendent along with Alderman Roman Pucinski, State Sen. Richard Daley and several committeemen voiced their displeasure over Byrne forcing an early endorsement.

It will not be difficult to judge whether the Kennedy forces will hold up against the president's campaign plan in Illinois. Right now, Kennedy is the stronger candidate in Byrne's eyes. But Carter received 71 percent to Kennedy's 26 percent in an Iowa straw vote this week, so who's stronger?

The future will have Byrne campaigning hard and keeping the faith for Kennedy at the Democratic convention. But at the convention, if she finds a stronger candidate, I wouldn't doubt that she may change her mind...again.

Letter to the editor

Pro-nuke stand

Editor,

After sitting back for so long and reading anti-nuclear arguments, I finally decided it was time to hear from the other side.

First, fifty percent of the energy in the state of Illinois is provided through nuclear power. Without this, would anyone like to imagine what the costs would be for other forms of energy?

Second, although there was a radiation leak at Three Mile Island, the amount given off was about equal to that of a sun burn.

Third, there has not been one single death from a nuclear cause. What other forms of energy can boast of such a record? A person is safer at a nuclear plant site than in an airplane, a car or on the San Andres Fault.

After the disaster of the DC10 (in which so many died) everyone said, "Oh, that's terrible." But there were no anti-airplane groups.

Yet people are willing to let Three Mile Island - in which NO ONE was killed - turn them against nuclear power.

The media has given it a disproportionate amount of bad publicity; at least hear both sides before making your decision.

The council requested the statement from Marvin in order to decide whether graduate assistants will be able to receive an increase or decrease in salary, Williams said.

This course will be available to senior undergraduates and graduates

A new option in nutrition and dietetics for the master's degree in home economics was also approved by

The council also heard three student appeals regarding time-limit extensions for work on degrees. The names of these students and other students making appeals before the council are withheld because of confidential information regarding grades, Williams said.

A black and white advertisement for a dance contest. The ad is framed by a decorative border. At the top, it reads "Dance to the Tune of $500.00" in large, bold letters. Below this, it says "Friday 4 O'Clock Club" and "- Dance Contest -". On the left side, there is an illustration of three dancers in a dynamic pose. On the right side, there is a list of bullet points: "• Mother's Congratulates Don Sopko & Ann Marie Locante, Fourth Week Winners", "• No Entry Fee", "• Next Contest Tomorrow Afternoon", "• Registration 4-5 pm", "• Contest Begins at 5", and "• Your Friends Can Make You $500 Richer". Below the list, it says "Judging by Audience Applause". At the bottom right, the word "MOTHER'S" is written in large, bold, serif capital letters.

Internships to be given

Internships are available for students in any major on campus for spring semester, Jane Ziegler, coordinator of cooperative education, said Tuesday.

The internships will focus on areas such as international affairs, energy, communications, the arts and others. "You can just about ask them to offer an internship in your major if they don't already have one," she said.

A new opportunity for Eastern students is an internship offered for industrial technology majors by the Electro-Motive Division of General Motors.

"The students will be rotated in different areas of production to gain an excellent experience," Ziegler said.

Jobs will concentrate in production management, production and material control and quality control and quality assurance in dealing with diesel engines.

Applicants have to be pre-screened and should contact Ziegler before Friday in room 15 of the Student Services Building.

Academic credit will be awarded to students participating in these internships, Ziegler said.

Musical team to play at UB Coffeehouse

The University Board's Coffeehouse feature Thursday will be "Spiritwood," Coffeehouse coordinator Jan Knoche said.

Lee and Larry Lawson, who will be performing from 8 to 10 p.m. in the Rathskeller, make up the husband and wife team of Spiritwood, Knoche said.

Knoche said they play a variety of instruments, including the acoustic guitar, piano, clawhammer banjo, mandolin and harmonica.

Knoche also said the UB is now accepting applications for Coffeehouse Open Stage night, which will be held Nov. 15 in the Rathskeller.

'Entropy' premiere ready for 5 o'clock

The premiere performance of an original skit entitled "Entropy" is the scheduled production for Thursday's 5 O'clock theater.

"Entropy" deals with five characters acting out the story of mankind's struggle as a civilization and as individuals. They are attempting to overcome the force of entropy in the universe by imposing order on the ever-present chaos, director Bruce Morriss said.

He added that there is no dialogue in the play and that the performance will be multi-media involving the use of lights and sound.

RHA to show 'Wiz' in dorms this week

The Residence Hall Association will be showing "The Wiz" this week in the halls.

The movie will be shown at 6 p.m. and 11 p.m. on Thursday in Carman and at 8:30 p.m. Thursday in East Hall.

On Saturday, the movie will be shown at 6 p.m. in Pemberton, at 7 p.m. in Thomas, at 8 p.m. in Taylor, at 9 p.m. in Ford and at 10 p.m. in the Lincoln-Stevenson-Douglas complex.

Eastern field hockey coach Betty Temple figures her Panthers have a "real good shot" at winning the Midwest AIAW Division II regional championship.

Eastern will face Northern Michigan at 2 p.m. Friday in Franklin, Ind., for the first game of the regional.

"They're a young team. At the beginning of the season their skill level was not good," Temple said.

"I don't know how they've developed, but I expect they'll be aggressive. When a team doesn't have skill or body control, there's a lot of bumping going on," the coach said.

Should Eastern defeat Northern Michigan, they will face the winner of the Franklin College-University of Dayton contest.

Temple said she thinks Dayton will have no problem defeating Franklin and she expects to face Dayton in the championship match.

Earlier this season, Eastern lost to Dayton 3-2.

"Even though we lost, we outplayed Dayton. And now they have lost six of their starters due to disciplinary action," she said.

The top three teams in the tournament will advance to the national meet in Princeton, N.J. at the end of the month.

However, Temple said Eastern will only travel there if they are the top team, because of funding problems.

"Right now we're at our peak. I think we have an excellent shot at it if we play well and stay healthy," Temple said.

Two Eastern players, Deb King and Phyl Tambling, were previously sidelined due to muscle strain, but are now back at 100 percent, she said.

Eastern, now boasting a 11-7-2 record, is "in top condition. Everyone is pretty well psyched. We'll be up for the regionals," Temple said.

ISU tickets available

Plenty of tickets are still available for Eastern's Saturday football game at Illinois State, Associate Athletic Director Ron Paap said.

The general admission tickets will be on sale for $4 at the University Union ticket office and the Lantz ticket office from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. through Thursday.

All tickets not sold must be returned to ISU on Friday, Paap said.

Paap said the tickets are for seats in a section that will be roped off for Eastern fans behind the Panther bench.

Lack of depth may hamper Eastern wrestlers

by Dave Claypool

Although Eastern's 1979-80 wrestling team has a cast which includes five returning All-Americans and two national champions, coach Ron Clinton feels that a lack of depth could pose as a barrier to a repeat of last season's second place finish in the NCAA Division II meet.

"We're not as dominating as we were last year because of the lack of depth," Clinton said. "I feel that our front line can go with anyone, but if one of them gets hurt, the replacement would just be a filler."

The vacancies in the Panther lineup are due to the loss of All-Americans Ralph McCausland and Bob Holland.

"We will definitely have a problem filling the shoes of Ralph and Bob," Clinton said. "The kids we have filling them are only freshmen and sophomores, who will hopefully come along and do the job."

Still Clinton has several veterans ready for the season which begins Nov. 16 at the St. Louis Open.

Heading the list of returning seniors is heavyweight All-American Dave Klemm, who finished third last season in the Division II national finals and second in Division I.

Klemm won the Division II title three years ago when he was a freshman.

Also returning for their final seasons are Doug Schafer, who will alternate at the 126 and 134 weight divisions, and 177-pound All-American Bob Stout, who placed second in the Division II finals.

Schafer, an All-American candidate last year, suffered a compressed fracture of the sixth vertebrae last season in his second match of the Division II finals but will be back at full strength this season, Clinton said.

Last year's national champion at the 134-pound division, junior Bob McGuinn, also returns to seek his third straight All-American status this year at either 134 or 142.

Another junior, Geno Savenago, is also hoping to repeat as All-American at 190. Savenago was narrowly defeated in last season's championship match.

All-American Randy Blackman, returning at 118, heads the list of sophomores. Blackman finished eighth in last year's NCAA meet.

Mark Granowski, a 150-pounder, is another second year man who Clinton hopes will add strength to the middle of his line up.

After being red-shirted last season, Gilbert Duran is a possible candidate at 142, Clinton said.

Other hopefuls to help beef up the middle of the Panther lineup are Kelly Jackson, Ken Blackman and John Balenhorts. Clinton said that these men are fighting for the 150 spot.

Those who Clinton feels have good chances of taking the 158 position vacated by Holland include Mike Polz and Mike Reis.

Derek Porter, a freshman from Titesville, Fla., will possibly fill the 126 weight division when Schafer is at 134.

"Don Caudle or Paul Johnson could also step in at any time," Clinton said.

Clinton said that in preparing for the upcoming season, the Panthers have tried to put last year's one-fourth of a point loss to California-Bakersfield in the Division II final behind them and concentrate on the new season.

Clinton also noted that the Panther's are looking forward to this season which starts Nov. 16 at the St. Louis Open, because he expects a few surprises from the younger wrestlers.

"We'll be strong, even without the depth," Clinton said. "We have a lot of returning national experience. If we get the breaks and if everything falls right, we have the potential to be in the top three of the nation again."

Clinton pointed out that the major goals for the upcoming season include trying to go undefeated, placing as high as possible in the nationals and repeating as the Mid-Continent Conference champion.

Klemm, McGuinn and Mike Polz will travel to Lincoln, Neb. this weekend to take part in the Great Plains Invitational. Clinton cited the fact that this meet was for Olympic hopefuls, and that that was the reason for taking only the three men.
